

The smart closet

In the last few months the weather changed a lot in just one day and so I had difficulties choosing the right clothes. So I got the idea of inventing something that allows you to change your clothes whenever and wherever you are. You simply start an app and your closet will appear in front of you in form of a hologram. You can scroll down on the hologram to tap on an item of clothing and the piece you've chosen will be on your body.